Washington, June 25.—Increases in tariff duties proposed on fresh meats, sugar, cereals, beans, potatoes and apples if effective would advance the cost of those commodities to American consumers by a total of $1,316,569,449 annually, Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, said today in a formal statement. He explained that this estimate had been prepared by the department of agriculture at his request and was adjusted on the total consumption in this country multiplied by the increased tax proposed in the new bill over the law of 1913.

Senator Walsh made public a table prepared by the department showing the increased per capita cost per annum of such items would be as follows:

Barley $0.094; bulk wheat $0.007; corn $4.077; oats $1.309; rye $0.062; wheat $1.702; sugar $0.409; beef fresh $2.714; mutton $0.150; pork $0.736; beans $0.130; potatoes $1.323; apples $0.397; total $13.16.

"The figures reveal the terrible consequences of high tariff duties on the basic necessities of life," said Senator Walsh. "At the very period when we are attempting to deflate the enormous cost of production and excessive prices prevailing as a result of war conditions, it is proposed to increase the cost of living to the American people to the extent of $1,316,569,449 per annum.

"It is unbelievable, it is inconceivable that any public man would for one instant seriously consider such a proposition, yet so great has been the pressure exerted on the majority party in congress by the agricultural traffic bloc that unless the American people make emphatic protest without delay, their living expenses for what they eat are to be increased at the rate of over one and one quarter billion dollars per year.

"The heavy income tax burdens, the excess profits taxes, and the high surtaxes which corporations and wealthy individuals have had to bear during and since the war sink into insignificance compared with the burden that the advocates of these agricultural traffic duties seek to force upon the great army of American toilers and consumers. Are the people of the United States really to surrender without vehement protest just because the majority in congress have surrendered to the threats and intimidations of the agricultural tariff bloc?"

Mrs Len Small
Reported Dying
From Apoplexy

Kankakee, Ill., June 25.—Mrs. Len W. Small, wife of Governor Small, is suffering from a stroke of apoplexy. Doctors to attend her have been summoned from Chicago. Mrs. Small was stricken after her return home here from Waukegan, where yesterday, after a long trial, her husband was acquitted on a charge of embezzling state funds.

At 10 o'clock tonight Dr. E. G. Wilson and Dr. W. A. Stokes, attending Mrs. Small, issued the following bulletin:

"Absolutely no hope. Fatal case. Sinking rapidly."

Doubt was expressed by those at the Small home whether Mrs. Small would survive the night.

Mrs. Small was stricken with apoplexy shortly before midnight while chatting with friends who had gathered to welcome the governor and his family home from Waukegan, where the governor yesterday was acquitted of charges of embezzling interest on state funds.

The governor's party had arrived home after 10 o'clock last night, accompanied by a delegation of friends who had motored out the Dixie highway to meet them. The governor and Mrs. Small were standing at the door of their home when Mrs. Small complained of not feeling well. She went to the house, where she lapsed into unconsciousness. She had not regained consciousness late tonight.

Mrs. Small had appeared in unusually happy frame of mind the outcome of her husband's trial and seemed particularly glad to be home from Waukegan, where she had been with the governor during the closing days of his trial. The ordeal, according to her friends, had taxed her strength greatly during the nine weeks consumed in taking the evidence, but she insisted on being with her husband at the conclusion of the case.

Washington, June 25.—President Harding believes each and every cabinet member should be permitted to exercise both the power and freedom of his own speech whenever he wishes on whatever subject. The mail of political leaders during the last few days, however, has resulted in their most fervent prayer that some cabinet members, at least, won't take advantage of the freedom aforementioned.

Specifically there is a private grashopping of teeth and a note approaching despair over Secretary Weeks' utterances at Cleveland and Philadelphia. In high republican quarters it is complained:

First, that what Weeks said about congress at Cleveland has given the democratic some much needed thunder, and that alleged dissatisfaction of the people with congress is not borne out by recent events.

Second, that Weeks expressed views on the prohibition law, following Chairman Lasker's declaration that United States shipping board vessels would continue to sell liquor until ordered to stop by congress if the courts has played havoc with it, if, indeed, it hasn't definitely killed the ship subsidy for this session.

Subsidy Seems Doomed.

Letters, newspaper clippings and other reports from the bone-dry sections of the middle west since Weeks brought his private views favoring light wines and beer out into the public forum, have tended to greatly concern republican leaders. They are convinced that unless Lasker, Harding, congressmen and others are able to talk the middle west farmers out of their present state of mind, no subsidy bill will pass this session.

Yaarab Tourists Returning Today After Big Trip

Cincinnati Impressed by Parade and Music of Local Nobles.

Cincinnati, O., June 25.—(Special.)

The two Yaarab specials are spending the last day of the three weeks' trip here. On arrival at the Central union station Syrian temple of Cincinnati had an escort for our uniform bodies and a parade was made up to the Gibson hotel. Yaarab's three hundred people made a big showing in entering the Gibson house.

This afternoon the whole party on both specials went up to Coney Island, ten miles up the Ohio river, on the boat "Lland Queen," and Yaarab's million-dollar band gave an hour's concert. Dr. C. E. Buchanan, the director, was at his best and the band gave one of its best concerts of the entire trip. Five thousand people were on the island. The chanteuse sang, the Oriental band played and the patio put on a drill.

Little Natale Cohen, the daughter of Dewal Cohen, a member of the first section, had the distinction of having her picture made with little Jackie Coogan in a Los Angeles picture studio.

We are closing a wonderful trip and all are anxious to get home after being entertained and feted at every stop. The two specials leave tonight at 10 p. m. for Atlanta, and arrive there at 11:45 a. m. Monday at the union station.

Postmasters Object To Odor of Liquor Which Fills Offices

Washington, June 25.—Hard liquor is threatening to disrupt the country's postal service.

Postmasters in many middle sized cities are complaining, treasurers report, that liquors seized by prohibition officers which are stored in the postoffice buildings for want of other space, fill their offices with effluvia—mostly bad—and they just can't work. The smaller town postoffices are beginning to smell like breweries and distilleries, officials in charge declare, and even the prohibition sleuths assert they can no longer detect charged hooch pockets around the postoffices because of the waftings from the storerooms.

President Harding's declaration to congress last December, suggesting reorganization of labor unions prompted the committee's criticism.

"It would seem," declared the committee, "that propaganda for industrial feudalism supported by political bureaucracy has found its way into the white house. It is most regrettable to note the utterances of the president of the United States where he disapproves of labor's reluctant but necessary resort to the right to strike against industrial oppression."

The report was made public today as an aftermath of the federation's 42d convention which, in adjourning yesterday, ordered that unfinished committee reports should be referred to the executive committee for action and included in the convention proceedings.

The council met today, received the reports and adjourned until the regular council meeting in Washington in September.

Mystery Phone Call Now Being Probed by Police

Grady Ambulance Driver
Declares Man Was Beaten
by His Brother.

A map whose name police were unable to ascertain Sunday afternoon was beaten badly in the apartments at 148 Forrest avenue, according to Frank Trammell, driver of the Grady ambulance, who, with the help of a telephone operator, traced the source of mysterious groans, that poured into the telephone girl's ears from a receiver that had been taken down and left off the hook.

According to information furnished hospital authorities by the operator, the receiver was removed, and when she answered, the response she received were moans and sighs that indicated some mishap had befallen the man who was trying to use the telephone to summon help. The number of the phone and the street address were furnished the authorities at the Grady, and Trammell made a record run to investigate.

He found, he states, a man with several wounds upon his head that appeared to have been inflicted with a "billy" or a like weapon, and who was bleeding profusely. He refused to be carried to the hospital, and when he went to the phone to summon the police, another severe blow was dealt him upon his head. The man refused to give his name.

Call Officers W. F. Bullard and John C. Davis were dispatched to the scene, but the injured man had disappeared into the street, and no information could be learned concerning his identity or about any fight that had taken place in the house. The officer stated, however, that the odor of whisky was unmistakable.

C. J. Powers stated that he lives at 148 Forrest avenue, and that no fight or similar disturbance took place there.

Lively Political Year Now Faces Georgia Voters

Report of Efficiency Expert and Governor's Letter Widely Discussed.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

As a stiff battle for the governorship looms on the political horizon; with a slashing scrap for commissioners of agriculture tugging along as a side attraction and with the members of the general assembly arriving for what is predicted to be an epoch-making session as far as politics is concerned, the lobby of the Kimball house, the political storm center of Georgia, began to hum and buzz in earnest Sunday night with some of the leading figures in Georgia political life already on the job.

For several months it appeared as though the year would be a quiet one from a political standpoint and that the old knives and axes would be kept in their sheaths until two years hence when a general free-for-all political melee could be pulled off but recent developments have knocked all these appearances into a row of shattered soft drink bottles. The battle is on now for a certainty and every new twist and turn in the situation makes it apparent that a great political struggle is under way.

Great Year for "Outs."

According to the gossip of the old staggers in the office seeking and often filling business this is going to be a great year for the "outs" to lambast, wallop and otherwise manhandle and pulverize the "ins." The "out" and "in" situation begins in the governorship race and ranges on down through some of the other state house jobs.

Governor Thomas W. Hardwick is "in" and naturally in running to stay "in" and the political destinies of many others depend on whether or not he succeeds in this purpose. Clifford Walker, who is running against the governor is reported to have sounded out the situation pretty well before entering and has satisfied himself that he will have such support as to make his candidacy decidedly formidable, even more so than in the last election in which he was defeated by a small margin by the present governor.

Atlanta newspapers Sunday carried several political news stories which set the tongues to wagging. The report of the Chicago efficiency experts employed by Governor Hardwick to make a survey of the state departments, which was published Sunday, was classified by some as possessing a political hue. Whether or not the document has a political basis, it was discussed in that light to a great extent Sunday. The statement of Governor Hardwick denying that he is under the influence of Clayt Robson, well-known politician, also caused widespread comment. Some read it and seemed much affected at the brotherly community of interest existing between the governor and Mr. Robson as outlined in the governor's statement, while others appeared to be skeptical as to Mr. Robson's complete aloofness from ever asking a political favor of the executive.

Watson Will Speak.

Another interesting sidelight on the situation came in the announcement that United States Senator Thomas E. Watson has accepted an invitation to deliver a speech at Gainesville on July 4. The appearance of the junior senator on the hustings in Georgia this period will set some of the wiseacres agog, and beyond all doubt, will attract to Gainesville on the glorious Fourth one of the biggest crowds that has ever assembled at that attractive city.

Still further mud was thrown into the political waters when J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, threw down the gauntlet to A. O. Blalock and challenged him to a joint appearance before "the people" for a little personal discussion of the sharply conflicting viewpoints of these two gentlemen to the correct manner in which the affairs of the state department of agriculture should be conducted.

Commissioner Brown took a "crack" at the governor in connection with his discussion of the report of Chicago efficiency expert relative to the possible savings that could be made in the commissioner's department and made the interesting statement that the Blalock candidacy is being conducted in the waiting room of the governor's office.

There were more wild rumors floating around the Kimball house Sunday night than have been heard during the whole preceding part of the year, and it is apparent this early that Georgia is in for a hot summer in several other ways than meteorically.

Legislature To Meet.

The two branches of the general assembly will meet promptly at 10 o'clock Wednesday, the meeting day being fixed by statute, and after the usual invocations of the chaplains, will be ready to take up the business at the point where it was left off on the last night of the session last summer.

Commissioner Brown refused to give his name.

Mr. Trammell, driver of the Grady, was dispatched to the scene, but the injured man had disappeared into the street, and no information could be learned concerning his identity or about any fight that had taken place in the house. The officer stated, however, that the

Peachtree RoadGrowth Is Seen

By James Logan

Wonderful developments in the Peachtree road section of Atlanta, which will be of vast importance in the upbuilding of the city, were dictated by James L. Logan, one of the most prominent real estate men in Atlanta and well-known as an authority on this class of development.

Mr. Logan refers to the survey made by H. M. Keys of the Southern Bell Telephone company, who has prepared a forecast of the future growth of Atlanta. Keys' report indicates that a large portion of Atlanta's expansion will come through the development of the territory lying along Peachtree road and that section of Atlanta.

Mr. Logan's Statement.

In discussing the development prospects of that region, Mr. Logan said: "The Peachtree road section of Atlanta has there been such a strong movement toward the development of that beautiful section above Buckhead, than at the present time. Since Camp Gordon has been eliminated, property owners in what we term the 'Peachtree Road Section' have been aroused to the great opportunities presented there, and are now looking forward to the future development of that section. The magnificent paved roads winding through the hills and valleys furnish picturesque building sites unsurpassed by any section of the entire south.

"Some time ago in a large meeting called in the interest of the development of the Peachtree road section, Mr. Walter P. Anderson made this statement: 'Other sections have their attractions, they come and go, but when the old families of Atlanta buy or build homes, where do they settle?' In Peachtree road section, of course. About 30 years ago I decided to buy a home in Atlanta."

"My long time friend and sage advice, Frank P. Rice, was in my office, and I asked him this question: 'Mr. Rice, if you were going to build a home, where would you locate?' His quick response, I shall never forget. 'He said, 'why Jim I would live a lot on Peachtree road somewhere. I have thought of it a thousand times in my long experience in advising my clients and customers as to the best place to invest their money.'

Enjoys Great Prestige.

"Everybody knows that Peachtree road is a joyous highway for 50 years that has never been successfully assailed. It is the main artery leading into our beloved city. The fame of Peachtree road extends to every section of America, and when a stranger visits Atlanta he always asks to be driven on Peachtree because he has been told of the many fine homes set in such picturesque surroundings.

"The fact that Peachtree road 'runs somewhere' is evidenced by our own thoughts, carrying us out that avenue right through Charlotte, Richmond, Washington and Baltimore to New York."

"So now the hearts of our people are now turning so rapidly towards the Peachtree section. I have been asked repeatedly in what particular portion of that territory will the greatest improvements be made in the next 10 or 15 years? Having made a study of this question for several years and having consulted many authorities on the subject, the consensus of opinion is, that the big developments in the next decade will be in the area beginning at the junction of Peachtree and Piedmont roads looking towards the north, the northeast and the east. This carries you down Piedmont road to the Roswell road and beyond both arms you take in a territory extending to a line beyond the Capital City Country club. The southeastern boundary would be just beyond east of Peachtree road.

"There are several thousand acres included in this area. The Southern Bell Telephone company, through H. M. Keys, commercial survey engineer of that company, has furnished me with a table of the anticipated increases in the extension of the company's lines for the next ten years in every direction, and a close examination of this table, which is based upon expert and reliable data, shows that the area shows most conclusively that the greatest percentage of expansion will be north of Atlanta including the area I have described.

for investment. Thinking over my experience in this line, dating back over 30 years, and having studied the movements of real estate in every direction around Atlanta, I do not hesitate to say very plainly and most emphatically that we selected just the right place to live in, a place which will not only bring future joy to the man who locates his home in that section, but will yield profits to the investor, which will make his heart swell with pride over having made the investment. It is psychological, practical, and exercising good common sense. Nature has made the most wonderful provision in topography, tree streams, etc., but the hand of man must be used in development.

"Millions of dollars will be spent in this section in the next few years as the handsomest suburban homes around Atlanta are being built on the magnificent tracts of land now being sold.

"Atlanta is a wonderful city. Our growth is more rapid now than ever in her history. Our climate, our geographical location, our large number of railroads and our fine citizenry contribute to the upbuilding of Atlanta."

Atlanta.

"The important factor in maintaining the prices of Atlanta real estate is the eternal and abiding faith of our own people in the great future of our city. Every Atlantan is a booster, and goes to the man who is a knocker. Once an Atlantan always an Atlantan."

"The cause of the quarrel which led up to the shooting is not known. Hirsh, who was shot through the cheek, the bullet ranging downward and apparently lodging near his heart, said the shooting had followed threats of violence by Mrs. Hirsh, according to Bernard J. Douras, New York city magistrate and father of the Misses Davies.

Charges Wife.

Magistrate Douras, who ran to the shooting, told Assistant District Attorney Edwards the wounded man had said:

"She did it. She shot me. She did not know me and now she did not."

Miss Hirsh, running from the scene of the shooting, was heard to say, according to witnesses, "Oh, I shot my husband."

Later, at the police station, Miss Davies told the authorities that her husband kept her in a prisoner in their home here for four days "with little food and drink, and when he picked me up I didn't know what I did."

Hirsh.

The Hirshs, who had been guests at the party, left shortly after midnight. A short time later the guests, including several well-known men and women of the stage and screen, that several measures which failed to pass in the last session will be supported by new friends during the present session. E. B. Moore, clearing of the house, has been on hand several days getting everything ready for the new session.

Although several senators are in Atlanta the bulk of the membership of that body is expected to arrive on Friday night. Wednesday Senator Herbert Clay, of Cobb county, lives at Marietta and has visited Atlanta several times during the week. He has declared that the senate is ready to get down to business from the start. Major D. F. McClellan, secretary of the senate, has been working several days getting his affairs in shape for the session and announces that will be ready when the gavel falls for the first time Wednesday morning.

All predictions are that the session will be a busy one from the beginning but few statements as to what measures will be brought out first have been made. The senate, like the house, will take up at the same point where work ceased on the closing night of the last session. The calendar of the two houses will be carried on through this session in the same order as they were left last year.

The Hirshs recently returned from Europe.

Mrs. Davies, in whose home the law party was said to have been given, tonight denied that she was to her sister's home last night. Miss Davies also has returned from Europe, denied all knowledge of the shooting.

Clowns Accident.

George M. Levy, who had been retained as Mrs. Hirsh's counsel late tonight following a visit to the scene of the shooting, told the wounded man had declared that the shooting was accidental.

"Mrs. Hirsh told me," the lawyer said, "that he had been collecting rents and had much money with him last night. For that reason he said, he had taken a pistol with him. He left the party to rest in a secluded spot in the garden, he told me, when his wife found him. He had been drinking," Hirsh said to me, "and my wife frightened me as she approached. I pulled my gun out of my pocket and she struggled with me. In the struggle the gun was accidentally discharged and I was shot."

We have supported and educated them so far at an average cost of approximately $5,000.00 a year and have added to their estate over $100,000.00 out of unexpended income. Their investments are in bonds legal for the investment of trust funds.

A very prominent lawyer, living in another State, whose step-son was interested in an estate administered by us, wrote, acknowledging receipt of final settlement:

"Permit me to say that I am very much pleased with the way in which you have looked after this matter and I wish to thank you for the prompt and efficient manner in which you have handled same."

We retained, under a Will, the share, appraised at $16,500.00 of a boy eleven years old. By taking advantage of increased real estate values, we sold and reinvested the proceeds in legal bonds and delivered to him property worth $31,000.00 when he became of age.

RELIKS OF THE PAST.

There is a great deal of food for thought in an article on this page today on the possible relegation of the ancient rule of congressional seniority, in the event the democrats regain control of the house this fall, as now seems entirely probable.

The article in question is from the pen of James A. Hollomon, Washington correspondent of The Constitution, who is now in Atlanta.

Every student of national affairs, and especially of the legislative branch of the government, knows that traditional policies have been handed down through generations, and adhered to by a number of leaders of both parties, who live in the past, to the absolute destruction of congressional efficiency, and to the detriment of sections and groups that have, perhaps, for one reason or another come under the ban of committee chairmen who have become legislative autocrats through seniority; and who hold these positions through length of congressional membership without any regard to fitness, or sympathy in the specific problems their committees are called upon to solve.

A committee chairman, especially in the house where all appropriation legislation originates, can make or kill legislation.

He can temporize with measures; delay hearings; commit to favorabile or unfavorable subcommittees, etc., and thus absolutely defeat the demands of the people if he so chooses.

As an illustration the Henry Ford proposition on Muscle Shoals would have long since been accepted by the house but for the unfavorable attitude of Chairman Kahn, of the military committee. He is a good man and an able representative, but he lives in San Francisco, far away from the agricultural south and west where the necessity for cheaper nitrates is so patent, and hence not in touch with the conditions of the farmers of these sections, or in sympathy with their needs.

The sixty-seventh congress has been in session practically without interruption since April, 1921, eight months of which time was in extraordinary session, with its attendant great expense to the taxpayers, and yet all constructive measures passed in the interest of agriculture, or of post-war business rehabilitation, can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

The reason has been the lack of legislative efficiency, and the lack of co-ordination, due in a very large measure to inherited committee chairmanships by old, moss-back members who are living today in the generations of the long ago.

This is a new age. New national and world conditions have been produced by the war and by the progress of modern times. The weak must give way to the strong.

Merit alone, and not ancient traditions and antiquated customs, must predominate.

And by that token the rule of seniority must take its place among the relics of the past, sweet perhaps for some of the good old congressional patriarchs to think about, but out of place in this age of the "survival of the fittest."

STONE MOUNTAIN.

The potential intrinsic value of the proposed Stone Mountain memorial to the heroes of the civil war is discussed interestingly and authoritatively by Herbert Myrick, nationally famous publisher, author, economist and financier, of Springfield, Mass., in a communication which we present elsewhere upon this page.

Mr. Myrick characterizes Gutzon Borglum, the world-famous sculptor, who already has begun operations preliminary to the actual carving of the figures he intends to engrave on the precipitous face of Stone Mountain, as "the twentieth century Michelangelo, and the motif of his projected sculptural enterprise in Georgia as "an epic," and he says that, "viewed merely as a business proposition," the pecuniary returns the people of Atlanta and vicinity will derive as a direct result of memorial undertaking "will yield a handsome income upon $50,000,000."

These returns, he says, beginning with the first strokes of the sculptor's mallet, "will be as gigantic and as enduring as the sculpture and the mountain itself," for "vastly increasing numbers of people will flock to view the progress of the work from year to year," and "they and their children's children will come again and again to bask in the beauty and drink in the inspiration of the life in these majestic forms and the strength ever diffused by Stone mountain itself."

The picture Mr. Myrick presents—the picture as he sees it from a distance of a thousand miles—is not overdrawn.

And the purely aesthetic, the artistic, sentimental and educational value of this proposed stupendous work of art—which, of course, it is impossible to appraise in terms of money—can be estimated only in the imagination of the individual citizen who gives it thought.

We hope that every reader of The Constitution will read Mr. Myrick's illuminating discussion—then form his own conclusion as to whether or not the enterprise "will pay," as our correspondent says it will, and whether or not it is worthy of encouragement and support by the rank and file—especially the well-to-do—of the people of Atlanta, Georgia and the south.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE

Announcement that W. A. Pittsford, formerly of the smoke inspection department of Chicago, and a nationally recognized authority on fuel combustion and smoke nuisance abatement methods, will deliver a public address in the assembly hall of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce tomorrow evening on "The Elimination of Smoke and Its Importance to Humanity," suggests a subject of interest to every citizen of Atlanta.

Mr. Pittsford is coming to Atlanta largely at the instance of City Mechanical Engineer Howard L. Stillwell, who is aggressively working to curtail the smoke nuisance in this city.

In his annual report of the activities of his department during 1921 Mr. Stillwell made the statement that "the smoke nuisance of Atlanta, I would conservatively estimate to be responsible for an annual financial loss to the citizens of at least $2,000,000, or about $9 per capita."

Reckoning from the basis of scientific computations of smoke losses in other cities, Mr. Stillwell said he believed $9 per annum to every inhabitant a moderate estimate of the financial loss due to smoke in Atlanta, suggesting that "it is easy for the average citizen to believe this when he recalls the money paid for laundry, clothes cleaning, etc.; and that "the average housekeeper will agree to this when the money spent annually for curtain washing, rug cleaning, re-decorating, etc., is taken into account."

And this, of course, does not take into consideration the element of human health and general mental happiness of the people of Atlanta, which transcends that of the monetary cost of preventable smoke.

There are laws and ordinances designed to regulate the smoke nuisance in Atlanta, but their enforcement, without subjecting the violators to unwarranted hardship and expense, is difficult.

In most instances the violations, which are of daily occurrence, are due primarily, not to any malicious intent, but to a lack of knowledge of the scientific and mechanical principles of combustion, mainly on the part of firemen employed by the railroads and industrial establishments deriving their power from soft coal.

It would, therefore, be manifestly unreasonable and unfair for the city to attempt to hold the employers of those men strictly to the letter of the law.

Mr. Stillwell points out in his report that "unskilled firing is responsible for an enormous quantity of black smoke," and that "to correct this there is need of co-operation not only of the owners and operators, but of the firemen and engineers in charge of the boiler room."

He goes on to say that "the question of preventing smoke is largely a matter of securing proper combustion of the fuel."

Thus, in view of the fact that the natural desire of both firemen and operators is to use as little coal as possible to obtain a given amount of available energy—which contemplates a minimum of fuel waste in the form of smoke—the matter of controlling the smoke nuisance automatically resolves itself into a question of education rather than a question of rigid law enforcement.

The engagement of Mr. Pittsford is intended as a step to that end. And it is to be hoped that every industrial fireman and every proprietor of an Atlanta steam plant, who can, will be present to hear the address of this noted smoke-control expert.

Some men tell their wives everything, and some love the dear creatures and covet their good opinion.

If you see a typographical error in The Nugget don't stop to criticize its editor. It won't hurt you or do any harm. When we received our limited education there was not so many words in the English language and those used were more common and easier spelled, read and understood, and the dictionaries small and easily gone over. But it is different now. They just keep "manufacturing" words and bigger dictionaries, like the legislature is by creating new counties, and the editors are doing the same thing. We have three dictionaries in our office, but most of the time are too busy to stop to refer to them. So we will turn out the news as all can understand and know what we mean. If there is any one who does not like our method of printing they need not take the paper.

POLICE ARE PROBING W. D. AIKEN'S INJURY

City police and detectives Sunday were probing into the mysterious injury Friday evening of W. A. Aiken, 45 years old, of 540 Fullman street, who is said to be in a precarious condition at his home under the care of a family physician, Dr. J. H. Ettridge.

The police were without information concerning Mr. Aiken's injuries until Saturday night, when A. F. Owens, of 48 Doane street, informed Assistant Police Chief E. L. Jett that the victim had been found in an unconscious condition on Ponce de Leon avenue. Two negro men who took him to the shop of the Southern Cycle Supply company, 64 North Pryor street.

Mr. Thomas, who is in charge of the shop, was told by the negroes, it is said, that Mr. Aiken had requested them to take him there. A taxicab was immediately summoned by Mr. Thomas and the injured man carried to his home, where he has since been under the care of his physician.

It is feared that Mr. Aiken sustained a fractured skull, a broken collar bone and probably serious internal injuries. His body was badly bruised and cerebral hemorrhage is believed to have caused his death. He is reported to have stated that he has no recollection of being hurt, and does not know where it occurred.

Mr. Thomas failed to get the name of the negro who brought Mr. Aiken to his shop, and he did not take the license number of the automobile they were driving.

A thorough investigation by the detectives and uniform officers was ordered by Acting Police Chief A. Lamar Poole, who instructed his men to leave nothing undone to learn the details of Mr. Aiken's injuries and jail where he might be responsible.

Mr. Aiken, collector of the American Furnishing Corporation, at 77 North Pryor street, and has been connected with that firm for a number of years.

Bridge Crashes; Men and Machine Plunge in Creek

Austell, Ga., June 25.—(Special) The long wooden bridge over Sweetwater creek near here collapsed today without apparent cause and dropped a heavy automobile with two men into the water. Neither was hurt. John Morris was owner and driver of the car. He and his companion came from the lower end of Douglas county.

The bridge was washed away during a period of high water three years ago and rebuilt, supposedly much stronger than it had been before. It was about 50 feet long, 22 feet wide and the floor was about 20 feet above the surface of the water. The automobile was just about midway the bridge when it collapsed, its occupants say.

One reason for a ducking they are none the worse for their experience. The car was unbuckled for slight water damage.

WHISKY CACHE FOUND IN VAULT NEAR SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., June 25.—(Special) For the first time in the 100 years that have passed since the famous Whisky ring was forged another link in the chain of evidence to show the existence of a great "whisky ring" operating in Savannah and environs. They found several thousand quarts of fine bonded liquors on the Rickingham farms, several miles out of the city.

The cache was found in a concrete vault constructed of rough and skillfully concealed. The vault is similar to two others found near the same locality several months ago. Chief R. Q. Merrick, Grover C. Edmundson and other officers of the enforcement squad, raided the place. Arrests are expected today or tomorrow.

WDAW PRESENTS SACRED PROGRAM

Dr. B. F. Fraser Preaches
and Mr. and Mrs. Boatman Sing for Radio Listeners.

A special sacred program was broadcast yesterday afternoon by WDAW, the station of the Georgia Railway and Power company, broadcasting for The Constitution between 3:30 and 4:30 P. M., when a vocal program was presented by Mr. and Mrs. A. Boatman and a sermon by Dr. B. F. Fraser, pastor of the Wesley Memorial church was presented.

The sacred program took the place of the broadcasting of the regular Sunday afternoon recital by City Organist Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., which was precluded by the Auditorium's being unavailable Sunday.

Five vocal numbers were presented by Mr. and Mrs. Boatman. Four of these were duets and one was a solo sung by Mr. Boatman. Mrs. Boatman played the piano accompaniment for all numbers. Three duets opened the program. They were "It's Sunshine in Your Heart Today," "The Outsider Cross," and "I Am Happy in Him."

Dr. Fraser preached for ten minutes on the subject, "God's Only Ship in Human Life." His text was, "Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price."

Dr. Fraser's theme was along the line that every person belongs to other institutions and to God first, and one belongs to the government, though one's recognition of the right of the government to take a part of his income for the common good. Second, Dr. Fraser said, one belongs to one's family in a higher sense than one belongs to the government. In the third place, one belongs to one's neighbor. Dr. Fraser said. He illustrated his third point with Jesus' words to the young man who asked him who his neighbor was. It was the story of the Good Samaritan.

Finally, Dr. Fraser said, one belongs to God, both by creation and redemption. This feeling of belonging to God should be the highest and most sublime of all the feelings of being possessed by some other person, group, or institution.

Businesslike Procedure Marks Woman's Convention

BY LOUISE DOOLY,

Editor Woman's Dept., Constitution.
Chautauqua, N. Y., June 25.—(Special.)—The full impressiveness of the General Federation of Women's clubs now meeting at Chautauqua, N. Y., which is organized in every state in the union and in even foreign countries, can be born in even upon the novice in club work at least twice daily, when the entire convention assembles in the open air amphitheater.

"We want neither radicalism nor reaction, but progress," said Mrs. George T. Guernsey, convention chairman on the first day, and Mrs. Horace C. Moore, president of the program committee, in the same sentence that the program of the biennial is not for entertainment, but to unite officers, chairmen, and women of the federation for plans of concerted action looking to be done. The theme of the convention as a whole is "Women as a Working Power."

These three statements suggest in a few words the dignity and substantial character of the federation's plan of work and methods of handling it.

Thanks Federation.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Washington, president of the National League of Women Voters, in extending greetings from the league, called the federation the league's older sister and thanked the federation for three things: First, responsibility for the habit women have for voting; second, because they enjoy coming together to study, play, and pray; second, for its provision of enormous interests in life and possibilities of service for the middle-aged women, for the grandmother who was formerly relegated to the fireside with her knitting; and the third, for the federation's broad program of activity which touches on round human interests, and comes from the federations which specialize, as, for instance, the League of Women Voters, which, as she describes it, specializes in the interest of women as voters.

Sensationalism has little place in the convention. The women are here, not to get into the limelight, but to plan and to do the work waiting to be done.

Newspaper reporters unfamiliar with the character of the federation, which has substantial results, prefer safe methods, get impatient over the absence of limelight leads. There are few references to the flapper, for instance, but there is steady building of co-operative plans for teaching girls organization, and as one clubwoman expressed it, "bridging the chasm of misunderstanding between the young people of the day and their elders."

The manner in which the meetings are conducted might be taken as a model by any gathering of men or women. Strict rules of procedure are followed, and nothing "gets over" that the presiding officer does not have an inkling of beforehand. There are no long-winded, irrelevant speeches, because no speaker is allowed on the platform whose message is irrelevant to federation interests, and each speaker has to observe absolutely the time he or she is allotted.

Broad Contacts.

The broad contacts of the federation have been indicated in the first few days of the convention, largely given over to greetings and messages from sister organizations.

There is the same sentiment that the program of the biennial is not for entertainment, but to unite officers, chairmen, and women of the federation for plans of concerted action looking to be done. The theme of the convention as a whole is "Women as a Working Power."

These three statements suggest in a few words the dignity and substantial character of the federation's plan of work and methods of handling it.

Thanks Federation.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Washington, president of the National League of Women Voters, in extending greetings from the league, called the federation the league's older sister and thanked the federation for three things: First, responsibility for the habit women have for voting; second, because they enjoy coming together to study, play, and pray; second, for its provision of enormous interests in life and possibilities of service for the middle-aged women, for the grandmother who was formerly relegated to the fireside with her knitting; and the third, for the federation's broad program of activity which touches on round human interests, and comes from the federations which specialize, as, for instance, the League of Women Voters, which, as she describes it, specializes in the interest of women as voters.

Sensationalism has little place in the convention. The women are here, not to get into the limelight, but to plan and to do the work waiting to be done.

Newspaper reporters unfamiliar with the character of the federation, which has substantial results, prefer safe methods, get impatient over the absence of limelight leads. There are few references to the flapper, for instance, but there is steady building of co-operative plans for teaching girls organization, and as one clubwoman expressed it, "bridging the chasm of misunderstanding between the young people of the day and their elders."

The manner in which the meetings are conducted might be taken as a model by any gathering of men or women. Strict rules of procedure are followed, and nothing "gets over" that the presiding officer does not have an inkling of beforehand. There are no long-winded, irrelevant speeches, because no speaker is allowed on the platform whose message is irrelevant to federation interests, and each speaker has to observe absolutely the time he or she is allotted.

Broad Contacts.

The broad contacts of the federation have been indicated in the first few days of the convention, largely given over to greetings and messages from sister organizations.

The manner in which the meetings are conducted might be taken as a model by any gathering of men or broad group of affairs, a coolness and command of the situation under all circumstances, a ready wit, and that rare gift in a woman—the ability to tell a story crisply and tellingly. When she presides and dominates with ease the great gathering of women, and when she is the leader, the command, and an evident affection is mingled with the universal admiration for her.

Dynamic in an entirely different way is Mrs. Josephine Dodge Daskam, noted author, who brought greetings from the national council of the Girl Scouts, and a bit of the organization which has made the scouring discipline what it is in a manner which charmed while it amazed. There was a long breath from the audience and a craning of necks when it was announced that Mrs. Daskam was on the platform and another gasp when she proved to be a young, prettily dressed girl.

Mrs. Thomas Edison is distinctive in an entirely different style. A blonde and beautiful in a stately way she has that tranquility of manner, that gentleness of air, which would seem to belong to the well-educated woman, and so it was a surprise to learn that she was no novice on the platform. Frances E. Willard had converted her father, one of the founders of Chautauqua, to the possibility of dignity for woman on the platform, and so Mrs. Edison had early sanction and endorsement from the public expression when the occasion demands.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park, no stranger to Atlanta, repeats at Chautauqua that impression she always makes of an intellectuality almost glittering in its brilliance. She has that rare charm in a woman, a mouth even more beautiful with which she is smiling when it is in repose, and her statements are so crystal clear with every superfluous phrase left out, that, like Mrs. Winter she speaks, the women who know her style, her custom, sit up and take notice, and there is a universal absorption in what she says.

In the Georgia delegation, Mrs. David Brown, of Albany, holds unique prestige here at Chautauqua in that she has for ten years been leader of the chautauqua course as taken by her own study club, which is a branch of the Albany Woman's club. She has certificates and many additional credits from this center of American culture.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retailing," "The A to C of Retailing," Etc.

When you select lamb (and it's delicious when served cold at this time of year) your most important consideration should be the color.

Young lamb is of rather a pale pink, the bone is tinged with red, and the fat is very white. A yearling has a deeper shade of pink, and much paler bones, still far from white.

Mutton, as meat from the sheep is termed when over a year old, has a deep pink flesh—almost red, although it is not as bright red as beef. Mutton has white bones and white fat.

At which the woman grasped me by the hand and said:

"You are writing another volume of your life, aren't you, Mrs. Asquith, in which you will tell us everything you think about us?"

I explained that I was writing an article on my impressions of America for publication in the newspapers and the second and final volume of my life, which would come out in the winter.

Met a Varied People

Cuttings were sent to me from me cuttings, some of a flattering kind, and others, which said it was abundantly clear that I was in a chaste humor; but that by guarding myself from my critics, I was exercising a caution that deprived me of all spontaneity.

These remarks are of little interest in themselves, but they tend to show how much some people and nations depend on the approbation of others; and are the reason why I am going to America.

It is probably wise in writing impressions to keep the conclusions you arrive at secure; and many may ask what can a woman who spent only 13 weeks in their country know of America or her people?"

In America, I can only say that in these 13 weeks, I was constantly traveling, I saw and failed to a more varied type of person than I could have done had I remained in either New York, Chicago or Washington for as many months. I met and conversed with senators, farmers, reporters, doctors, hotel porters, waiters, mechanics, soldiers, shopmen, doctors, men of science and commerce, and a few of the fabulously rich and famous.

Lamb loin has a good and a bad end, and the prices of these vary accordingly. Most housewives use the good end for an oven roast and the poor end, sometimes known as "chump," for a pot roast, but the latter requires a good deal of time to make it at all tender. Nevertheless, it is an inexpensive end and certainly makes for economy in the distribution of the food budget.

As the summer approaches, we buy more and more silks. Tomorrow some hints to guide you.

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, who possesses to a surprising degree a quality of "youth" wished for her at birth by her youthful aunt, Marjorie, today, however, has been sold to whom Stephen Dale, a wealthy bachelor, has been devoted for years, impetuously decided her love for Dale, and is being told that she is to be the bride of the son of Diana's husband, marries Sylvia Bennett, a girl of Diana's who is to be a "carriage" for her. She is to go to California with her new husband. Diana meets Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance and is accidentally introduced to a young New Mexican town when the invited pulls out. They are picked up by a Spanish name, Borden, who is married to Johnston, whom Diana calls her fiancé for a sake, a prisoner and tries to marry Diana, who escapes only to fall into the clutch of another who is making a broken heart. She is rescued by Dr. Maxwell Borden, a former noted surgeon of New York. He and his sister, Cynthia Borden, are people of mystery. Dale promptly falls in love with Diana. Dale falls in love with Borden, and tells him that Cynthia Borden, whom he falls to recognize, was a former fiancée of his uncle who died.

INSTALLMENT 40.

A Significant Admission.

Diana sat for a while deep in thought.

She was profoundly interested in the revelation Dale had made to her regarding Dr. Borden. It深藏着 the atmosphere of passion and tragedy which seemed to surround these two. She was too much absorbed in her own thoughts to note that Dale, seated quietly beside her in the hammock, was watching her with a curious expression in his dark eyes. If she had looked up suddenly she would have seen something to cause her wonderment.

"It's more mysterious than ever," she said finally, with a sigh. "I can't understand it at all, can you?"

Dale shrugged.

"If this is really the Maxwell Borden and his sister whom I knew, it's not very perplexing. If I remember aright, Borden went off somewhere because of failing health—lung trouble, I believe. The rumor got about that he had died. Obviously, he didn't."

"But why should he choose to remain down here instead of going back to the world?"

"Needs the climate probably. Not recovered."

Diana spoke without thinking:

"You, but he must be or he surely wouldn't have asked me to marry him."

Realizing what she had admitted, she bit her lip in vexation.

Dale gave a low whistle.

"So? Even the good doctor has succumbed."

Diana tossed her head.

"Well, where is Marjorie?" persisted Diana.

"I haven't the faintest idea!"

"Why not?" in amazement.

Diana summoned all her pride and spoke lightly:

"Don't think that because I haven't succeeded in vamping you, that I can't attract older men."

Grecian styles are worn by fastidious women who do not care for the extravagances of the Russian fashion, especially by older women who cling to the preference for plain fabrics.

It is wise for us to hearken to news that come to us from Paris. Stylish fashions will soon begin in that segment of the world which devotes itself to women's apparel. Buyers of French gowns will not go abroad for a month, but those who manufacture clothes have gone, returned and gone again.

It is quite true that the manufacturers give to women on this continent the kind of clothes suitable for American figures, climate and social environment. They do not stick to the original model as the Earrings are decidedly in vogue in Paris. The long, thin, crystal drops are particularly favored, more so than rings or hoops.

There is a clever trick among French women of wearing one earring—a long one dangling down over the shoulder, and the other ear without any decoration.

Pearl tassels are favorite earrings.

Of course the idea is to have earrings for each costume, and sometimes women have more than one pair for a favorite frock. These harmonize in color and design both the frock with which they are to be used.

There is a vogue for wearing earrings containing little portraits in miniature—anybody who wishes, of course, in high favor.

Old earrings of gold and silver are in demand, and ancestral jewel cases as well as antique shops are called on for them.

There are some earrings made of onyx, set with pearls, that are truly beautiful.

Nobody's Man

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Next Week, "The Little Red Foot"
By Robert W. Chambers

"Without even a seat in the House of Commons," he reminded her bitterly. "And again, how can a man be a great politician when there are no politics? The confusion amongst the parties has become chaos, and I for one have not been clear-sighted enough to see my way through."

"Of course, I know vaguely what you mean," said he, "but remember that I am only a newspaper-educated politician. Can't you be a little more explicit?"

He lit another cigarette and smoked restlessly for a moment.

"I'll try and explain, if I can," he went on. "To be a successful politician, from the standard which you or I would aim at, a man needs not only political insight, but he needs to be able to adapt his views to the practical programme of one of the existing parties, or else to be strong enough to form a party of his own.

That is where I have come to the cul-de-sac in my career. It was my ambition to ride the working classes of the country into a glorious place in our social scheme, but I have also always been an intensely keen imperialist, and therefore at daggers drawn with many of the so-called Labour leaders. The consequence has been that for ten years I have been hanging on to the thin end of nothing, a member of the Coalition government, numbered by sufferance of a hotch-potch party which was created by the combination of the radicals and the unionists with the sole idea of seeing the country through its great crisis. All legislation, in the wider sense of the term, had to be shelved while the country was in danger and while it was recovering from the war. The time I spent striving to educate the people I wanted to represent, striving to make them see reason, to combat the two elements in their outlook which have been their eternal drawback, the elements of blatant selfishness and greedy ignorance. Well, I failed. That is all there is about it—I failed. Nobody claims me. I haven't even a seat in the House of Commons. I am nearly fifty years old and I am tired."

"Nearly fifty years old!" she repeated. "But what is that? You have good health, you are strong and well, there is nothing a younger man can do that you cannot do."

"Perhaps," he admitted, with a faint smile, and an innate compulsion to tell of the thought which had lurked behind, "because you are so marvelously young."

"Absurd!" she scoffed. "I am twenty-nine years old—practically thirty. That is to say, with the usual 'two per cent' allowance, you and I are of the same age."

He looked across at her across the lace-draped table with his bowl of fruit, its richly-cut decanter of wine, its low bowl of roses, its haze of cigarette smoke. She was leaning back in her chair, her head resting upon the fingers of one hand. Her face seemed alight with so many emotions. She was anxious, hopeful, interested in her companion, herself, and the moment. He felt something unexpected and irresistible.

"I would to God I could look at it like that!" he exclaimed suddenly.

The words had left his lips before he was conscious of the thought which had lain at the back of them had four expressions of tone and stance. Just at first they produced no other effect in her save that evidenced by the gently upraised eyebrows, the sweetly tolerant smile, and then a sudden cloud, scarcely of discomfiture, certainly not of displeasure, more of unrest, swept across her face.

"What does that wish mean?" she asked. "Do you mean that you would like to agree with me, or would you like to be twenty-nine?"

"At twenty-nine," he told her, "I was first secretary at St. Petersburg. I am afraid that I was rather a dull dog, too. In Russia, even then, was something, and I was trying to understand. I never did. Now I understand Russia. The explanation of all that has happened there is simply the eternal duplication of history of a huge class of people, physically omnipotent, conscious of wrongs, unintelligent, and led by false prophets. All revolutions are the same. The punishment is too severe, so the good remains unknown."

He relapsed into a silence so apparently deliberate that she accepted it as a respite for herself also. From the greater seclusion of her shadowy seat, she found herself presently able to watch him unnoticed—the brooding melancholy of his face, the nervousness of his hands, the discontent of his sombre brows. Then, even as she watched, the change in his expression started her.

"You are beginning to doubt me," he said. "You are wondering if the shadow I carry with me is not something more than the mere depression of man who has failed."

"You are right," she declared. "I never doubt you, but there was something in your face just then which was strange, something alien to our talk. It was as though you saw something ominous in the distance."

"It is true," he admitted. "You read of the disappearance of the Honorable Anthony Palliser?"

"Yes, I did," she answered. "Besides, you told me about it, did you not, yesterday afternoon?"

"I was obliged to dismiss him at a moment's notice," Tallente went on. "He betrayed his trust and he has disappeared. That very imposing police inspector who broke up our tête-à-tête yesterday afternoon. They have come to the conclusion that it could, if I care to throw some light upon his disappearance."

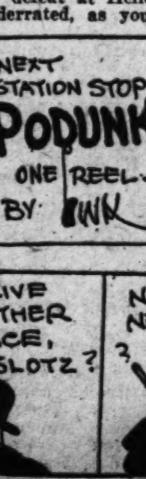

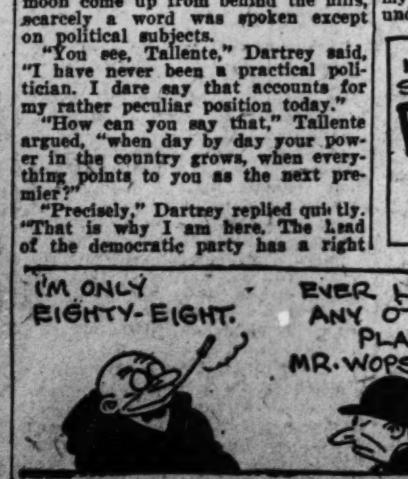

"And could you?"

He rose to his feet. "You are the one person in the world," he said, "to whom I could tell nothing but the truth. I could."

"Back in the Game."

"You lost Hellefield, Mr. Tallente,

Pre-Season Dope Very Close to Correct So Far

Skirmishig Period Over In Majors and Real Battle For Pennants Has Started

Most Teams Are Trying to Curb Wild Hitting And Getting Down to Real Baseball. Pitchers in Good Shape.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Baseball has now reached the end of the first real test of the season. Roughly, the baseball season may be divided into three parts, the first ending with the close of the second east-west series. When each club has played each other club both at home and on its own grounds, the first test of strength is finished.

The first period of the season is not a true test, but it represents the opening skirmishes of a big battle, the attack and counter-attack, the fight out of the fog. No club settles to its true form during that period. In fact, the clubs do not reach their true championship form until the end of the second third of the season, which comes around the second week in August. But this season, it must be admitted, the major league clubs have been running closer to the form they probe. It will show during the stretch run in late August and September that they usually do, a fact which is not at all encouraging to teams that have decided weaknesses. The fact that some of the weak clubs have been winning a little more than the number of games they figure to win and bowing over strong clubs they did not figure to beat is encouraging, for the simple reason that it proves closer over a greater part of the season than they are during ordinary seasons.

Dope Nearly Correct.

A study of the dope as it has come in during the first half of the 1922 season, as it figured in March, was very close to correct. In fact, extremely few of the teams are far out of line just now. I have been going over the figures again to see how they are working out. You know that in figuring the dope it is necessary to study first the strengths of each team in each position and then figure out what each team should do against each other team. It is rather remarkable the way in which this thing is working out. Brooklyn has been disappointing in its showing against the Giants, Cleveland has done worse against Washington than it figured to do, New York has done better against the Indians than the dope indicated they would do, and Detroit has done much better against the A's than the figures show. Otherwise there is little difference, and these differences have been largely made up thus far by gains against other teams.

Slowly Adjusting Themselves.

In fact, with the exception of the fact that Cleveland is lower than it ought to be, due to either wrong figuring or to the fact that it is playing, and Detroit is higher, there is not much out of the way in either league, and the indications are that the clubs are slowly adjusting themselves to the positions in which they will finish.

In spite of the strength the Giants have shown, there is small comfort for them. The manner in which the Cardinals are doing battle with the Cards when they reach to form a play like this like the ball they did after rounding into form last season, the Giants have a much more serious battle on their hands than they or others figured they would have. In fact, last season the Cards, from July 1 to the end, won a much greater percentage of games than the Giants did, and played better ball. They were not far back to reach the top when they had been on July 1 last year where they are now they would have won the championship by eight or more games. There is, however, no assurance that they will do so this season. Their hope of a championship seems to lie more in the weakness of the Giant pitching staff than it does in their own attacking strength.

Pitchers Round into Form.

Cleveland, which figured only a shade better than St. Louis and the Yankees in the American league, appears to be whipping their pitching staff into shape at last. The team just as good as it figured to be, but the pitching has been far below the spring indications, and, while the team is still hanging on grimly and keeping within striking distance of the leaders, it must develop the pitching staff, or it has a chance. The Yankees are doing exactly the same they figured to do, slumping by spells, but playing high and fast by others. It is not a good team, nor a consistent one, in spite of its great pitching staff, and evidences of discord are numerous. The dope on that club ought to work out perfectly, and in fact if it does not rally after its return to the top grounds the chance is that it will get worse instead of better. The anticipated pre-dope indicates a quick fall upon the home-coming, followed by another slump, and the indications are that a big shakeup will be necessary to bring out the rally.

Wild and Wooly.

There has been a tremendous lot of wild and wooly baseball played this season, and the indications are that most of the teams are trying to curb the wild swinging, walloping, home-run hitting style of play and settle down to sane baseball. The fact that some of the best batters have

Steady Industrial Gains Despite Uncertainties

New York, June 25.—Notwithstanding the uncertainties comprised in the several labor disputes and the impending reductions in railroad freight rates, industry maintained its gains during the past week. Steel mills continued to operate at nearly 75 per cent of capacity, and the prices of steel products and the firms engaged in prompt shipment were stronger than that for future delivery, but this was considered natural by the trade, since the future course of prices is rendered uncertain by such factors as the change in railroad rates, the coal strike, the possibility of higher labor costs, and the character of the autumn demand for steel.

Impressive gains were shown by the lumber market on loading figures for the week ending June 10. Although coal shipments, which have been gaining, still amounted to only 95,000 cars as compared with 205,000 cars in the week before the strike started, the volume of other freight increased sufficiently to bring total loadings up to 846,000 cars. This figure equals that recorded in the week before the strike began, which is, incidentally, the high record for the Strike Crisis Near.

A number of well-posted observers inclined to the view that a crisis in the soft coal strike is approaching. Stocks are being drawn down and the lower freight rates on July 1 are expected to stimulate demand. In this connection, the pressure added production appears to be growing, a circumstance which favors the view that the decisive point in the struggle is impending.

Reports from New England said that more of the striking textile workers were returning to the mills. The mills appear, however, to be still operating at a comparatively low rate.

Opinion as to the likelihood of a railroad strike continue to be divided. The roads still profess to regard such an event as unlikely and it is pointed out that there has been some slowness in the balloting. Union officials insist, however, that the vote will favor a walkout, and not only will it be ordered. Nothing definite has developed to indicate whether the train employees would declare a sympathetic strike in the staff employees who are concerned in the present series of wage cuts, should go out.

Crop Prospects.

Crop prospects remained somewhat uncertain, but a good yield of wheat and a phenomenal cotton crop are still probabilities. Some claim of winter wheat deterioration on account of hot dry weather in the northwest has been made and prices have rallied about five cents above the recent low, but the greater firmness is attributed to the technical position of the market rather than to any material change in crop prospects. Persistent wet weather in the south and high cotton prices early in the week. After the weather cleared, however, the fresh advance was cancelled.

Reduction of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York to a 4 per cent basis offered fresh support for the view that no early hardening in money rates is likely. Rates for the various forms of credit are at their lowest point of the year. With reserves at a high level with the demand for accommodation slight and with a moderate trade revival rather than a boom in prospects the reserve bank authorities evidently anticipate no real strain on credit facilities in the next few months.

FIRM BUSY MAKING OLD MATTRESSES NEW

The increasing price of cotton, with the somewhat scarcity of this commodity, has brought a wonderful impetus to the business of the Gate City Mattress company, located at 104 Decatur street.

T. H. Moore, manager, reports that the past year has brought more than a 100 per cent increase in the business of his plant over that of last year, and that for the past few months the company has enjoyed the busiest season of its history.

The Gate City Mattress company was established about three years ago. It is a manufacturer of new mattresses, turning out several kinds and grades for the trade, and enjoying a wide patronage among mattress dealers. However, it is continuing the custom of work specially for the custom market, for which reason, year after year, or, since mattresses users have learned what a splendid saving they can make over the purchase of a new mattress. In this way, so Mr. Moore declares, users can save at least one-third of the price of a new mattress and still have a mattress just like new.

The mattress company keeps on hand at all times a large supply of ticking of all kinds and qualities, that those who like can select just what they want. A special fleet of trucks is maintained where a call can be made to any home within a short time, and it is this service—prompt and efficient—that keeps the Gate City Mattress company before the public and makes its work popular at all times.

Only the best of mattress makers and representatives are employed by the company, and the skill and neatness with which they turn out work adds to the fame and prestige of the company. To those in the city or suburbs who desire mattresses, renovated and made to look like new, and where comfort is guaranteed in working over a job of this kind, the Gate City Mattress company will be glad to send a man to make estimations, etc., and if the work is desired, it is only a matter of a very short time to return a finished, satisfactory job.

Promising Business
Outlook Foreseen
By the U. S. Treasury

A promising outlook for business is foreseen by the treasury so dispatches from Washington say.

At present, according to high officials, the situation is as good as could be expected, with indications of betterment continuing. The coal strike has affected several states, and to a certain extent, officials asserted, while the uncertainty as to a possible rail strike has added to the less favorable factors in the situation, but, nevertheless, conditions were declared to be good.

Other federal reserve banks, according to treasury officials, can be expected to follow the lead of New York and Boston banks in reducing rediscount rates, although it was stated nothing official has yet come before the board beyond a request for the government's attitude from the San Francisco bank, which has not yet acted.

However, it was believed that other banks, after having the 4 1/2 per cent rate probably would cut to 4 per cent, in which event it was supposed the western districts, now at 5 per cent, could be expected to follow the general trend and drop to 4 1/2 per cent.

The advances will be made on the basis of 50 per cent of a conservative valuation of the tobacco.

It is expected that only a portion of the amount approved will be advanced by the war finance corporation and that the banks in the interested districts will do a considerable part of the financing for the association.

Mr. Meyer announced also that the loans made by the corporation to the Wheat Growers association of Washington and Idaho have been repaid in full.

Weevil Weather Causes Cotton Trade Reaction

New Orleans, June 25.—After making new high levels for the season last week, in the early sessions, cotton commenced to react under realising from the long side mixed with more new selling based on cotton improvement for the season. Improvement in the cotton market was checked both by state and official accounts and caused marked improvement in the condition of the growing crop.

At the highest prices the line was 104 to 111 points over the close of the preceding week July up to 22.25. From this reaction carried the trading months to levels 35 to 40 in the closing of last week. The trade was much improved in the measure taken by the growers to combat the weevil and the organized movement to grow cotton in spite of the weevil, such things being accepted as marking an actually new phase of cotton growing.

In spite of the effects of hot and dry weather on the weevil, there was no disposition to minimise the interest in the insect, the point being made in many market circulars that it was likely to become an all important factor should July and August bring showers that are usual in those months.

Easier Money Is Cause Of Rise in Bond Market

New York, June 25.—Aided materially by country-wide ease of money price tendencies in the bond market this week were mostly upward on a fairly large and more diversified volume of business.

New underwritings aggregated $93,000,000, as compared with the previous week's output of $80,000,000, and the week's new issues of $10,000,000 in the writing. State and municipal loans were prominent features, totaling $25,300,000, but new railroad offerings approximated almost $42,000,000, with $7,700,000 of public utilities, $9,800,000 of new industrials and only $8,335,000 of new foreign loans.

The more important domestic projects were the $27,000,000 of new railroad equipment trust note of the New York Central, which offered to yield from 5 to 5.50 per cent; $8,000,000 Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway equipment trusts, yielding from 5 to 5.40 per cent, and several small offerings by other roads.

Of the state loans, the largest was that of North Carolina, amounting to $8,000,000, with interest at 4.12 per cent, and offered on a basis of 4.40 to 4.40 per cent. Municipal loans for improving public facilities, when in some unknown manner, the gun discharged, the entire load plowing its way through his body, producing instant death. Mr. Jacks was 44 years of age, and leaves a wife and nine children.

Because of the food shortage in Transcaucasia the people have had to make many rags and the rug market thus offers alluring possibilities.

SAYS U. S. JURORS SHOULD INITIATE IMMEDIATE PROBE

Official Incompetence or

BY NEUFIELD JONES

Alexander Says That He Believes Probe Will Show
Washington Protects Certain Bootleggers.

Hinting that a federal grand jury investigation would disclose that local whiskey dealers are under protection of prohibition officials and that some are even protected from Washington, Hooper Alexander, former United States district attorney, Monday issued a statement containing veiled charges of official corruption.

Attorney Alexander declared that evidence is available that will demonstrate on its face that immunity is being enjoyed by whiskey men in Atlanta.

Denies Giving Immunity.

The statement brought a lengthy reply from N. T. Jones, assistant federal prohibition director to whom the statement was revealed in the absence of Director Fred D. Dismuke. The official declared that "the statement that any bootlegger in Atlanta or Georgia enjoys immunity is unqualifiedly false."

Immediately upon being shown the statement issued by Attorney Alexander, Assistant Director Jones conferred with George E. Golding, investigator for the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department. At the end of the conference the prohibition official announced that Mr. Golding is prepared to receive any evidence in Mr. Alexander's possession.

Charge by Alexander.

The statement of Mr. Alexander in full is as follows:

"When consideration is given to the scale on which the several prohibition laws, state and national, are being daily violated in Atlanta, the notoriety of the guilty parties, and the reckless disregard of caution in which they operate, no explanation is possible except official incompetence or official corruption."

"In the light of some facts which I personally know, and others for which I am told that witnesses can be produced, I feel warranted in expressing the opinion that the federal grand jury should, of its own initiative, set on foot an exhaustive inquiry to determine whether there are bootleggers in Atlanta who are confident of immunity from prosecution, whether there are any who are in the actual enjoyment of immunity, and, if so, why."

"I am of opinion that an adequate investigation will show that there are even some who are protected from Washington. Evidence is available that will, on its face, demonstrate that this is true, unless it can be explained away by matter not now apparent."

Reply of Jones.

The reply of Assistant Director Jones follows:

I have no doubt Mr. Alexander now knows a great deal more about the whiskey situation since he is out after a term of eight years as district attorney than he knew when he was in. His activities now are a great contrast to his activities as district attorney. Some of the bootleggers now operating in Atlanta and who have been caught, also operated when Mr. Alexander was district attorney. Why didn't Mr. Alexander take some action. Further than that his article can only mean one of two things. He is calling Washington's attention to the fact that a serious error was made when he was separated from the federal payroll or that before the preparing and issuing a skeleton platform. If this last be true, he is likely to find that a great number of the whiskey voters at large will be unable to vote before the election.

The federal prohibition enforcement office have two agents in Atlanta to cover the city and five agents in counties, but in spite of this fact we are doing more than we were done when

Specialist Is Combing Rome's City Dump Pile For Lost Radium; $3,000

Rome, Ga., June 26.—(Special)—An Atlanta expert is here today looking for a quantity of radium valued at $3,000 lost at the Harbin hospital Sunday evening following an operation.

It appears that the radium had been used and was inadvertently thrown into a waste basket by one of the nurses and thence found its way with garbage and rubbish into the city dump pile. When the loss was discovered today immediate steps were taken in an effort to recover the radium.

The hospital was insured against this loss and the representative of the insuring company is here armed with an instrument for its recovery. The city dump pile is being guarded.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT IS TO FACE BIG BATTLE

Tax Legislation Still Up in the Air and No Report
Is Expected—Meeting Is Called This Afternoon.

With many of the leaders of both houses of the general assembly already in Atlanta, and with scores of others due to arrive today, it became certain Monday that a number of stubborn battles will mark the 1922 session of the legislature, which begins Wednesday morning, with especial attention being paid to the state highway commission and to tax legislation.

It has become known that the rock quarry which the department bought about a year ago has proven a white elephant on its hands, and that property now is on the market for sale at practically anything that may be offered for it; that the grade of material is by no means what it was represented to be while the sale offer was pending, and, in addition, that it proved so expensive to get stone out of the quarry that the department has been forced to abandon it and buy material from private concerns where it can be had at a much less figure.

Stubborn Fight Certain.

Incidentally it is learned in the same connection that the majority and minority committee reports, made up after investigation of the highway department last year, are to be pulled out of the pigeon hole early in this session, and one faction is going to make a stubborn fight to have the McMichael minority report, which roasts the highway department pretty roundly, made the sentiment of the house. Whether that is done or not, there is bound to be a renewed effort made to have still another investigation of the department this year, in which, it is learned, the matter of a number of purchases will be most carefully scrutinized and, it is intimated, some sensational developments are probable.

The joint committee in whose hands has been placed all the pending tax legislation, and which was unable to agree a couple of months ago when the income tax plan was under discussion by them, will be called to meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the senate chamber by Chairman George H. Carswell, who is now in Atlanta.

Bankers Will Appear.

Requests have been made by the bankers' association and the manufacturers' association for a hearing before the committee, and both of these will enter a vigorous protest against the income tax plan. On the other hand, it is learned, it will be put squarely up to the bankers that, if they persist in fighting the income tax plan, they may be forced to accept a stamp act covering all notes and mortgages handled by them and, in order to prevent the burden being passed on to the borrower, a companion bill will be introduced to provide that any rate of interest greater than 8 per cent shall be interest and where usury is proven the interest and principal both shall be forfeited.

Members of the joint tax committee meeting will not proceed that Tuesday night, but will not proceed differently from the last one held, and that the com-

July 3rd Next Enrollment Period at The Southern Business College, the School That Shows Results'

A. C. Briscoe, President.

L. W. Arnold, Vice-Pres.

The Southern's Reputation for Efficiency Spreads — Big Firm in Texas Wires for Help.

July 3 will be the next busy enrollment day at the Southern Short-hand and Business University, 11 Whitehall street. Already a large number have made application for entrance on that date.

Now, that the pupils who have been attending the literary schools have had a good rest, they will make their way to the Southern Business college, where they will begin a practical course in business training and thus become equipped, within a comparatively short time, for commercial positions.

And this is the school that shows results!

That's the reason the enrollment of new pupils during the present month, June, has been double that of last June, and last June's business was good.

The Fidelity Produce company, of Atlanta, has just employed Miss Parish, one of the Southern's pupils.

L. H. Smith, another pupil, goes with the Dixie Garage Co., this city.

Miss Leila Robertson has obtained a nice place with the World Mfg. company, of Atlanta.

Miss Lucile Jackson leaves the Southern for a good position with E. V. Haynes Co.

The Southern's reputation for doing thorough work is spreading. A telegram was received from the Buff Candy Mfg. company, at El Paso, Texas, as follows:

"We will have position open July 1, for combination bookkeeper-stenographer. Reply day letter, giving full particulars."

The employment department of the Southern is one of its busiest departments.

Call, write or phone for catalogue. Make arrangements this week to enter next. Attend the big, live, up-to-date school and thereby make your services in demand.

The coolest place in town.

WHITTEN INDORSES COURTLAND PLANS

Courtlard street improvement plans, calling for the regrading, repaving and widening of the street into an 80-foot thoroughfare that will be a part of the newly planned boulevard to be dedicated as a war memorial by the Eighty-second Division Association of Atlanta, were presented Monday afternoon to the city planning commission in the city hall.

Although no action was taken on the plans at the meeting, because of the lack of a quorum, the project, as outlined by H. A. Alexander, chairman of the Courtland Street Improvement association, was indorsed by R. J. Whitten, city planning expert, who has had wide experience in directing city planning in such cities as Cleveland and Indianapolis, and was given careful consideration by Robert R. Otis, who acted as chairman of the commission in the absence of Mayor Key, and the two other members present.

"I think that the Courtland street project is a fine project for street improvement in Atlanta," declared Mr. Whitten. "We need more streets to relieve the downtown streets of traffic, and such projects as that of Courtland street will do much to relieve the present congestion on Peachtree street and at Five Points."

Plans for Edgewood.

Following presentation of the Courtland street plans, Brown Hayes, representing Edgewood residents and property owners, spoke in favor of improving and widening Edgewood avenue. He was advised by Mr. Otis to prepare plans for such improvement and widening, and present them to the commission at its next meeting.

A large crowd of Courtland street residents and property owners accompanied Mr. Alexander to present the plans for the improvement of the street, which were adopted by the Courtland Street Improvement association last Friday. These plans call for widening the street 20 feet on the west side from Gilmer street to Edgewood avenue, 10 feet on each side from Edgewood avenue to Forrest avenue, and 20 feet on the west side, and 10 feet on the east side, from Forrest avenue to North avenue.

Value of Thoroughfare.

Mr. Alexander explained in detail the plans, told the members of the commission that they represented the sentiment of the Courtland street property owners and residents. He said that their adoption, and the construction of the street, would form a new cross-city thoroughfare that would relieve congestion at Five Points and connect southeast and northeast Atlanta. It was also pointed out that by improvement and widening of about three squares of East Fair street, the Washington-Courtland boulevard, that will be formed by the improvement of Courtland street, would be connected in almost a straight line with Whitehall street, and thus assist in relieving it of its present crowded traffic.

George H. Boynton, former councilman, who has been the father of a number of street improvement plans, and Joel Hurt, a member of the planning commission, also spoke in favor of the plans. Mr. Alexander pointed out that the association he represented invited the planning commission to make such changes and additions to the plans presented as they might think advisable.

Final action on the Courtland street project is expected at the next meeting of the planning commission.

Mrs. S. M. Beck Dies at Home In Rabun County

Clayton, Ga., June 26.—(Special.) Mrs. S. M. Beck, 99, wife of the late Captain S. M. Beck, better known in this section as "Aunt Patty" Beck, died at her home in the eastern part of Rabun county last night.

Mrs. Beck was one of the most prominent women of north Georgia and had large family connections. She is survived by one son and two daughters.

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR ROCKEFELLER

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 26.—With simple ceremony, the body of William Rockefeller, brother of John D. Rockefeller, and one of America's wealthiest men, was laid away in a receiving vault in Sleepy Hollow cemetery this afternoon. The body will be left there until the handsome mausoleum, planned and started by Mr. Rockefeller before his death, is completed.

The only service was the reading of the Episcopal ritual. There was no music and no eulogy in deference to Mr. Rockefeller's oft-repeated wish. The service was held in the music room of Rockwood hall, the Rockefeller home at north Tarrytown, with only members of the family and a few friends to hear. The Rev. Charles Baldwin of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Scarborough officiated.

Half a mile away, outside the huge gates that mark the borders of the estate, was the general public. No one, not even newspaper men, who could not show a right to enter, was allowed to approach the house.

Mrs. T. Wells Tells How Cuticura Healed

Blisters On Baby

"When baby was three months old she broke out in little clear blisters. After a while the blisters would break and she would scratch them, causing them to become inflamed and form large, sore eruptions. They were all over her body, even in her hair. Her hair fell out and became dry and lifeless. She could hardly stand her clothing, and we could not pick her up without hurting her.

"The trouble lasted about five months. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two weeks could see an improvement. I continued using them and she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Theodore Wells, R. 1, Box 47, De Ridder, La.

High Grade Diamonds Scarce, Both Here and A'broad

"Trade Record" of the National City Bank of New York reports a scarcity of high-grade diamonds being imported from the markets of Europe.

This slowing down in our importation will not materially affect our rank as holder of one-half of the diamonds of the world. It is an indication of advancing prices, and we think it a good time to invest in diamonds.

We ship diamonds on approval and sell on attractive monthly terms.

RADIO

CHOIR TRIUMPHS IN RADIO PROGRAM

Soloists, Elocutionist and St. Paul's Methodist Choir Give Program for WDAD.

A program that has never been excelled by The Constitution radio service for real quality and diversity was given radio listeners last night from WDAW when a program under the direction of Mrs. Annie May Taurman Norton and J. T. McDonald, was presented. Choir music, solo selections and humorous recitations were included on the hour's program, which a host of telephone calls at its conclusion gave evidence was one of the best presented so far by The Constitution.

The choir singing was declared by listeners in and near Atlanta to be some of the best ever presented. This kind of music is especially difficult to broadcast successfully and successful transmission of the anthems which the choir sang marks a new achievement for The Constitution.

The choir was that of the St. Paul's Methodist church of Atlanta. The choir is a beautifully trained body of singers in which every voice counts.

Opened With Piano Solo.

The program was opened with a piano solo, "Grande March de Concert," played on the Wellington piano furnished by the Cable Piano company, by Mrs. Norton. Mrs. Norton is a teacher of voice, piano and organ and is especially gifted as a pianist.

An anthem, "Hark, Hark My Soul," sung by Mrs. Hugh Timms and Mrs. Robert Gartrell with the St. Paul's choir, followed the piano solo and was one of the outstanding selections on the whole program.

Surely as effective as the other numbers was the third, which was a vocal quintet, "From Every Stormy Wind," sung by Mrs. Norton, soprano obligato; Miss Jessie Reynolds, soprano; Hugh Timms, tenor; Mrs. Hugh Timms, contralto, and Mr. Smith, bass, with Miss Josephine Smith at the piano.

In the fourth number on the program, Miss Carol Gifford, who is talented in elocution, gave a humorous recitation, "The Troubled Dutchman." Miss Gifford made a distinct impression with this recitation.

Sings Vocal Solo.

"From the Land of the Sky Blue Waters," sung by Miss Martha Crowe, a pupil of Mrs. Norton, with Mrs. Norton at the piano, was the fifth selection. It was sung with a fine technique and expression.

Again in the seventh number, the choir was heard. The anthem was, "Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates," by Mrs. Robert Gartrell and the choir. Mrs. Norton was at the piano.

Mrs. Norton's voice was heard for the first time in eighth selection, when she sang, "For You Alone," with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Gartrell. The solo was a triumph by radio, as later telephone calls indicated.

Miss Gifford gave another humorous recitation, "Reminding the Hen," as the ninth number.

Miss Vivian Harris, one of Mrs. Norton's pupils was heard in the tenth number, when she sang as a solo, "By the Waters of Minnetonka." Mrs. Norton accompanied her on the piano.

Concluding the program was the choral selection, "Awakening Chorus," by the St. Paul's Methodist church choir.

Georgia Delegates' Reception To Club Women Big Affair

BY LOUISE DOOLY
Editor Woman's Department, The Constitution.

Chautauqua, N. Y., June 26.—(Special)—One of the brilliant social functions of the convention was the reception given by the Georgia delegation, with Mrs. B. M. Boykin, of Atlanta, official hostess, Saturday afternoon at Hotel Athenaeum.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, and the officers of the general federation and Mrs. J. E. Hays, president of the Georgia federation.

The drawing room had elaborate decorations in the brilliant hued flowers of this section, arranged in baskets. An orchestra from Jamestown, N. Y., provided music.

Distinguished Guests.

The occasion was one of distinguished personnel, bringing together the outstanding women in organization in the United States and several distinguished foreigners.

The Georgia chairmen in charge of arrangements were, flowers and decorations, Mrs. M. E. Judd, of Dalton; refreshments, Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, Montzuma; invitations, Mrs. R. K. Rambo; publicity, Mrs. Omar F. Elder.

The reception was only a formal expression of the southern spirit which had already prevailed the entire convention, and brought out comments like that of a Connecticut delegate, who wondered how Mrs. Hays got so many fine women into one delegation.

Mrs. Duryea.

Of Friday's speakers, Mrs. Florence Spencer Duryea, national executive secretary of the Near East relief who is well known in Atlanta, made a telling address, in which she told of her recent tour of the Near East, and of the problem of the workers with insufficient funds. Shall we really care for 250 or help keep 500?

Convention Music.

"Seeing America First" is the name of the convention's program of music, which includes each afternoon at 4:30 in the open air amphitheater a concert by American artists of note, and they frequently give all American programs.

The first of these, an hour of American Indian music by Lieurance, the composer, and Edna Lieurance, his wife, who by the way, are going to put on in Atlanta one of the concert series intime next season, was very delightful. The music is a cycle composed by Mr. Lieurance on Indian themes, which preserves the Indian atmosphere, but is instrumentalized according to modern theories of composition.

Mrs. Lieurance has a voice of exquisite purity and sweetness, and in Indian costume falls charmingly into the spirit of her husband's music. Mr. Lieurance provides also a lecture feature so that the concert is both educational and entertaining.

Salvi, the Spanish harpist, the only foreigner on the musical program, who was very appropriately placed on the international relations program, and who made a tremendous impression, is also to be one of the artists in the Atlanta Music club program next year.

Nursery Will Be Featured at B. And P. Convention

When the business and professional women of the United States meet at their fourth annual convention at Chattanooga, July 10-16, there will be a department that no other organization of women has ever had and one that tells to the world that business and professional women are not neglecting their duty to the race.

There will be a special department for the babies who will be brought to the convention by their mothers. Trained nurses are to be provided for the youngsters and every amusement and special diet that any well brought up baby could desire will be on hand. The babies will be parked in the nursery while the mothers are in session, and every care will be taken of them. Dr. Bertha Maxwell Huntington, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation, who lives at Williamsport, Pa., has announced her intention of being the first mother to take advantage of the convention nursery and will take her young son, Frits Huntington, aged 9 months, to the convention. It is safe to say that every delegate to the convention will visit the nursery some time during the convention to exclaim with pride over the health and buxomness of the federation babies.

Lena Madeline Phillips, executive secretary of the federation, has sent out a special appeal to the clubs to bring the club strength of the federation up to 400 strong before July 10. The response to her request has resulted in new activities in every state and a spirited competition is now on as to which state will soonest complete its quota. Many are greatly exceeding and the prospects are that the 400 mark will be over-reached long before the convention meets.

Special trains carrying delegates to the convention will go from Nashville, Atlanta, New York, the northwestern states and the middle states. Ohio, Indiana and Cincinnati delegates will arrive at Chattanooga in a large party.

Heavyweight Bout Tops
Tonight's Milling—The Little Fellows Fight
Prelims.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

When the "Alabama Wildcat," Joe White, clammers through the ropes at Ponce de Leon park tonight for his 10-round engagement with K. O. "Bill" Dugan, the local heavyweight, the patrons who are interested in the extent of spending their hard-earned shekels to view exhibitions of the manly art of self-defense, or preservation, are practically assured of seeing some milling that can only be described as being hectic. How long the fight will last there is no means of telling—and who will win is more of a problem than how long the fight will last. For these reasons, if for none other, the fight fans of this little village are going to get a run for their money. It may be a short run or a long one, a fast one or a slow one, but it is going to be a run, and in the course of events some one of these fighters is very apt to get knocked for a row of Chinese pagodas.

Both of these men are big, and both can hit, and the fellow who can stand the most punishment and come up for more, will, without question, win the battle. On past performances these fighters seem about evenly matched, with White having a slight edge. White has fought some mighty good men—and for this matter so has Dugan. Both have battled the New Orleans giant, Jack Bruno, and decisions were the best that either could do, over this hefty customer. Of course, Bruno is no top-notcher—but with his size and hitting power, he lacks a whole lot of being what is commonly known as a set-up.

White, only a few nights ago, lost one of these decisions to Martin Burke, of New Orleans, the man who has the reputation of being the premier heavyweight of the south end of these United States. Whether the decision was clear-cut or one of these hair-line affairs this correspondent is not able to state, but the fact that Joe White was able to go with this husky, speaks well for his ability to take them and still keep hitting at his opponent.

Hits Hard Always.

This Alabama Wild Cat lives up to his name in the ring and any opponent of his will tell you in no uncertain terms that he is no sort of a creature to rub the wrong way, if at all. In all his ring career he has never been knocked off his feet and a heavyweight that has never been knocked down is a rare bird. Most of the opposition that is picked for a man of White's poundage is capable of knocking down a small-sized brick house, and if he hits an opponent squarely and he doesn't fall as a usual thing they are leaning again the ropes in a comatose condition.

Dugan and his manager, the genial Rilly Lotz are not worrying about the roughness of the opposition tonight. Lotz says that he is not worrying about White and his prowess because up in the north Georgia mountains they are all tough and that is where Dugan comes from.

"He's never been knocked down, huh?" continues Billy. "Well wait till Dugan kisses him a couple of times, then if he don't go down it will be on account of his feet not letting him fail. That's all."

Dugan Has Improved.

Dugan on his last appearance here did not make much of an impression on the followers of the ring game, but people who have seen him fight since this time were impressed with the improvement if his style and hitting power.

Neither of these men are boxers and they do most of their blocking with their faces or their jaws and this fight will be one of these knock-down and drag-out affairs that keep the fight fans on the edges of their chairs or standing up cheering.

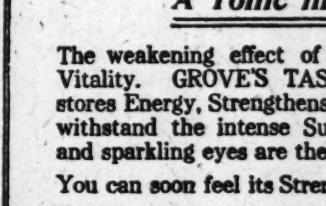

A fine card of prelims has been arranged by Colonel Miller, matchmaker for the American Legion, under whose auspices the fight cards are run off, and what the main bout may lack in flashiness the little fellows will supply. There will be slugging in the main event and boxing in the prelims—and this is the sort of a bill that will draw much attention.

Kid Lavigne will make his reappearance in a local arena. Lavigne is an oldtimer and he knows the game from "a" to "z," and his opponent is due for a boxing lesson.

Peter Horvath will make his debut in a local ring and from the reports that have followed Horvath, he is a tough bird and a good scrapper.

Tickets are on sale at Julian Prade's, at Chess' and at the Rex. There are no ringside seats for this fight and the center boxes are the best seats in the park for this card. The usual prices prevail.

Rheumatism at 60

How glorious you will feel, mother, when your rheumatism is all gone. Let S. S. S. do it. It will build you up, too!

S. S. S. Thoroughly Rids the Body of Rheumatism Impurities.

Somebody's mother is suffering tonight! The scourge of rheumatism has wrecked her body; limping and suffering, bent forward, she sees but the common ground, but her aged heart still belongs to the stars! Does anybody care? S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-purifiers known, and it helps build more blood cells. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable. It never disarranges the stomach. It is, in fact, a splendid tonic, a blood maker, a blood enricher. It banishes rheumatism from joints, muscles and the entire body. It builds firm flesh. It is what somebody's mother needs tonight! Mother, if you can not go out to get a bottle of S. S. S. yourself, surely somebody in your family will. Somebody, get a bottle of S. S. S. now! Let somebody's mother begin to feel joyful again tonight. Maybe, maybe it's your mother! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

CORN AND WHEAT PRICES DECLINE

Chicago, June 26.—Rains and cooler weather preventing crop damage had a bearish effect today on the wheat market, and so, too, did misgivings in regard to the German political crisis. Wheat closed heavy, 3 5/8 to 2 1/4 net lower, with July 111 1/2 to 111 1/4 and September 112 7/8 to 113. Corn finished 1 3/8 to 1 1/2 down, oats off 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 and provisions at unchanged figures to 17 1/2 decline.

Liquidating sales on the part of holders of wheat took place on an extensive scale wherea new buying in volume failed to develop. Besides, with apprehension relieved as to the crop outlook, speculative pressure to sell showed a noticeable increase, and except for a little hesitancy at the start the market was on the down-grade almost constantly throughout the session. It was a generally accepted opinion that the winter crop was made, and that for the present the spring crop could be looked upon as in fine condition.

Governmental uncertainties in Germany were exploited as bearish because presumably strife resulting would more or less check United States export trade in wheat and rye with that country and would also tend to interfere with payments for breadstuffs already bought. Weakness of foreign exchange received close watch in this connection. Meanwhile, announcement of liberal decrease of the United States visible supply of wheat failed apparently to stimulate milling demand or to bring the market any other important support as the day drew to a close.

Heavy receipts of corn and slackness of shipping inquiry here, together with changed weather conditions seemed to be chiefly responsible for sending corn and oats lower in price.

Provisions were governed in the main by action of the holding market.

BY R. L. BARNUM.

Constitution's New York Financial Correspondent.

New York, June 26.—Receiving a clean bill of health from the committee of the stock exchange which has been investigating the recent action of Mexican Petroleum amounting to a license to go as far as it liked the pool operating in Mexican Petroleum celebrated today with an advance during the first fifteen minutes to 11 points. But that was only a starter.

Closing at $1.81 1/4 and opening at $1.84 1/2, shortly after noon $2.00 was crossed, with $2.14 1/2 reached during the next half hour. That made an advance of 71 points in a little over a week.

Well-informed Wall street knows the make-up of the pool operating in Mexican Petroleum. And, as a result of the report brought in by the committee of the stock exchange investigating Mexican Petroleum, the conclusion was reached throughout Wall street that the right people can do anything provided no governors of the exchange are caught short of a stock, as was the case in Stutz, shortly before that stock was stricken off the list following an investigation. It is believed here that the short interest in Mexican Petroleum was made up of widely-scattered, comparatively small, out-of-town traders.

Briefly stated, the decision of the stock exchange governors that no corner existed in Mexican Petroleum, made a bad impression in Wall street. There is no question but that the action of a stock such as Mexican Petroleum hurts the stock market and Wall street in general. Poor judgment was used by the pool, made up of banking interests, in deciding to "stage" the recent action in Mexican Petroleum following the recent disclosures in the steel merger investigation of profits made by Wall street bankers. All that kind of stuff brings nearer the day when the stock market will be regulated by law, something not altogether to be desired for the best interests of all parties concerned.

Louisville & Nashville has been coming to life slowly during the past few days, reviving rumors of a stock dividend. The closing price was $1.17 1/2 last Friday, and $1.18 1/2 Saturday. Today early it was $1.21. Some other rails were strong on the official confirmation of rumors that plans were under way for the merger of Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, Wheeling & Lake Erie, and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western.

Norfolk and Western continues to make hay while the sun is shining by making the most of the activity of the non-union soft coal mines. Today's statement for May shows $8,994,000 gross, an increase compared with last year of $2,381,000, with net operating income of $3,412,000, an increase of $2,541,000. For the five months gross of $36,538,000 is up $4,397,000, with net of $10,170,000 up $7,061,000.

Call money opened at 4 per cent today, and by 1 o'clock was up to 4 1/2, afterwards advancing to 5 1/2. There was some withdrawals of deposits by out-of-town banks last week. That is the only change in the money situation.

The federal reserve board at Washington reports an increase in wholesale commodity prices for the month of May of 9 points, or 6 per cent on the average. Last May the figures were 145. There was a drop to 142 by the close of June, followed by a recovery in September to 146, and then another drop in December to 142. Since last April there has been a steady rise to 158 at the close of May.

Working for Holiday.

A number of stock exchange members have been working hard with petitions to get exchange to close on Monday July 3, thus giving them a Holiday from the closing at noon Saturday to Wednesday morning. There is not much chance of getting favorable action by the governors at Wednesday's meeting, however, according to today's rumors. There is an inclination among the governors it was stated to shut down on the extra holidays.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg reports for May gross of $890,000, compared with $1,101,000 for the same month last year. There was operating deficit of $91,000 against a surplus last May of $70,000. For the five months net operating income was $593,000 against $302,000 a year ago.

Holding for Advance.

Today's Pittsburg advices say that old producers in that district are holding for another price advance. Premiums of from 15 to 25 cents a barrel are being paid, it was stated, over the open market price of $3.50. Similar advices were received here before the last advance of 25 cents in the price of Pennsylvania crude.

Lackawanna, "the road of anthracite," is paying for the strike. Today's statement of earnings for the five months of the year up to the end of May, show $30,381,000 gross, a decrease of $4,332,000, with net operating income at $4,314,000, an increase of $1,047,000. This statement includes two months of the strike when absolutely no anthracite was mined. For May, gross was $5,516,000, a decrease of $1,778,000, with net operating income only $422,000, a decrease compared with the same month of last year of $617,000.

Taking a 10-year period, well over 40 per cent of the company's total tonnage is made up of anthracite coal.

However, if any railroad in the country can stand the prolonged coal strike, that road will be the Lackawanna, with its large accumulated profit and loss surplus built up from current earnings over and above its 20 per cent dividend, with almost regular extras.

Change in Attention.

If the death of William Rockefeller had been announced unexpectedly a few years ago, speculative Wall street would have been hanging over the ticker at the opening this morning to watch St. Paul, Anaconda, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and United States Steel common.

Rockefeller at one time was a powerful factor in all of the companies named.

But that was in the days when he was acting with E. H. Harriman, James Stillman, H. H. Rogers, H. C. Frick, Jacob H. Schiff and others in the "Standard Oil" crowd.

The death of one after another of these powerful leaders has changed conditions in many large corporations whose securities at one time or another have been very active on the stock exchange.

Today the individual is not playing an active part in St. Paul, Anaconda, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, United States Steel. Times have changed. And war conditions, too, changed the character of the investments of very rich men like William Rockefeller.

LOCAL LEGIONAIRES PLAN SPECIAL TRAIN

At a meeting of the Atlanta post No. 1, American Legion, Friday night, in their new club rooms, 14 1/2 Marietta street, considerable interest was shown when a report was made by J. A. Bankston, chairman of committee in charge of transportation arrangements to the convention in Waycross, July 17-19.

Mr. Bankston stated that plans are being made for the operation of a special train by the A. B. & A. railway for the accommodation of the Atlanta delegation, and invitations will be extended members of all North Georgia posts to attend a proposed entertainment to be given by the Atlanta post No. 1 Saturday night, July 15, prior to departure of the special Sunday morning, July 16, and proceed to Waycross in a body. Indications are that a strong delegation will represent this section at the convention.

MRS. WALKER'S AWARD HELD LEGAL BY COURT

Judge George L. Bell in Fulton superior court Monday upheld the award of the Georgia industrial commission in giving Mrs. Gladys Walker, widow of Irby C. Walker, Pinkerton detective, who was killed by Frank B. DuPre, $8,000.

Walker was shot to death by DuPre after the latter had held up and robbed the Nat Kaiser Jewelry company of a $2,000 diamond ring and was attempting to make his escape.

The industrial commission awarded Mrs. Walker $8,000 under the workman's compensation act, passed by the legislature, 1920, but the detective agency contested the decision.

Attorney Philip Alston, who represented the Pinkerton agency at the hearing, announced that the case will be appealed to the supreme court. Mrs. Walker was represented by Attorney Charles Shelton.
